However, Nakheel will continue to provide project management services for the master development.

The Government of Dubai through the Dubai Financial Support Fund (DFSF), has confirmed its financial support for the Jumeirah Golf Estates project, with funds to be used to complete the infrastructure in the project, to host the Dubai World Championship over the next 4 years and to complete its real estate projects within the master development.

Such associations also increase the Return on Investment as the quality and experience offered is unparalleled thereby adding to the exclusivity.

Better living by design

Famous names like Greg Norman, Vijay Singh, Pete Dye and Sergio Garcia add luster to a golf-course community. Research shows that buying a home in a community with a brand-name course usually translates into better appreciation and higher property values. Golfing properties are growing in popularity and Dubai is a great place to invest. Because of their desirability, golf properties are often seen as having strong investment potential. A neighbouring designer golf course can positively impact the value of a property by up to as much as 50% - in an ideal world; the property will be situated within easy reach of a number of different courses, thus maximizing its appeal. As such, they tend to hold their capital values better than other types of property, resisting the vagaries of market swings. They also tend to produce strong capital appreciation and good rental yields, as golfers play the year round. Some golf properties also have a guaranteed rental income, which is a nice way to mitigate the costs of running the property and its general upkeep.

What environmental principles will the development follow?

Not content with unprecedented course designs and unparalleled golf experiences, Jumeirah Golf Estates is also committed to following eco-friendly and environmentally sound principles and practices - only developing courses that actively benefit the environment.

What is EIFG and how is Leisurecorp involved?

EIFG stands for the Environmental Institute for Golf. EIFG is a collaborative effort of the environmental and golf communities, dedicated to strengthening the compatibility of golf with the natural environment. The Institute concentrates on delivering programs and services involving information collection, research, education and outreach that communicate the best management practices of environmental stewardship on the golf course.

Jumeirah Golf Estates and its partners and ambassadors have a deep connection to EIFG. Greg Norman serves as the council's chair, and Pete Dye, Sergio Garcia and Vijay Singh are also members. In addition, Dye, Garcia and Singh have all donated portions of their design fees from the Jumeirah Golf Estates project to EIFG.

Will landscaping be provided to the neighborhoods?

Jumeirah Golf Estates will provide landscaping for streetscapes, parks and roads. Materials will include stone and wood cladding that are consistent with the styles and color palettes of the neighborhoods and associated golf courses. Foliage and other landscaping features will also take their inspiration from the neighborhood's organizing element.

Chair of the Advisory Council of the Environmental Institute for Golf, Norman designs courses that are sensitive to the environment.

Vijay Singh is designing the Water Course.

He is perhaps one of the most aptly named players on the Tour, his first name is Hindi for victory, and Vijay Singh's career to date has been nothing short of remarkable. Turning pro in 1982, he won the Malaysian Open in 1984 and joined the European PGA Tour in 1988. Named Rookie of the Year when he joined the US Tour in 1993, Singh's real breakthrough came in 1998, when he took his first Major. After being inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame in 2006.

His commitment to practice and preparation is legendary. Singh brings the same approach to excellence to the Water course. His design philosophy centres on the idea of least disturbance, utilizing and enhancing the features of the natural surroundings in courses that are developed as opposed to constructed.

Sergio Garcia, Greg Norman and Pete Dye are designing the Wind Course.

Consistently ranked with the world's top-ten player, Garcia is one of the game's fastest rising stars and was widely acclaimed as the hero of the 2006 European Ryder cup team. His collaboration with Greg Norman and Pete Dye on the design of Wind marks his first foray into course design, and promises to reflect the enthusiasm and dynamism that marks out his game.

A towering figure in the game, widely accepted as the one of the world's greatest golf architects Pete Dye has designed some of golf's most iconic courses, include the Stadium Course at TPC at Sawgrass, Carmels Crooked Stick and The Club at PGA West. In over five decades, Dye has never failed to delight and frustrate generations of golfers, and his contribution to the game is such that in 2005 he was honoured with a PGA Lifetime Achievement Award.

What kind of design features do the courses have that make them unique?

Earth

A sharply defined, sculptured course inspired by the great parklands of Europe and North America, Earth by Greg Norman paints a magnificent pastiche of flora, rolling terrain and rushing water. These natural components also provide differing angles and changing perspectives from each tee. The meandering, and occasionally daunting, water features are an ever-present factor when lining up the next shot, forcing a careful drive and constant consideration of ball carry.

The Earth course is also the proud host of the Dubai World Championship, the culmination of The European Tour season end, with a prize purse of a staggering USD $7,500,000/- and a further bonus pool of USD $7,500,000/-, making it one of the richest golf tournaments in the world.

Held annually since November 2009, the event has welcomed over 120,000 spectators from all over the world who have flown in to watch their favorite players play the challenging Greg Norman designed Earth course.

Fire

Framed by a wide variety of captivating flora, carefully selected to reflect the overall theme and to enhance its natural setting, Fire is in complete harmony with its surroundings. The undulating topography, with its considerable protrusions, creates a more challenging level of play. Rustic, and so visually stunning as to captivate even those who do not golf, the Fire course demands a well-thought-out strategy. Going directly at the flag may not always be the best approach, which gives Fire a strong sense of classic links-style play.

Water

Winding its way through naturally vegetated dune troughs, following ribbons of wetlands, with oasis and pond areas fringed by palm trees, the Water course offers a plethora of water features. Though beautiful, these can be formidable hazards. Water by Vijay Singh will accommodate a more conservative approach, while at the same time tempting more aggressive play at greater risk. The result is a course unique in Dubai, challenging, with a traditional style of play that's enthralling in both appearance and feel.

Wind

With a varied range of teeing options, the Wind course promises to pose a unique challenge to golfers of every skill level. Tight fairways cushioned between rolling dunes will allow little room for error with approach shots, and well-protected, undulating greens mean precision is key. Co-designed by Sergio Garcia, Greg Norman and Pete Dye, the Wind course takes golf back to its roots with a traditional Scottish-links-style course in which the power of energy and nature is key.

Will the courses be public or private?

Five years in the making, from a barren area of desert to one of the world's most anticipated golf course developments, Jumeirah Golf Estates has opened its doors to a select few to take on the varied challenges of Greg Norman's masterpieces, Fire and Earth.

Offering 36 holes of Championship golf across both courses, each with its own distinct style and challenges, the courses have garnered critical acclaim since being opened for play in early 2009. With over 200 members now a part of this exclusive golf club, the honor of playing on Fire and Earth is restricted to its members.
